

April 29th is “Penguin Day.” There are seventeen species of penguins world-wide. Imagine you're a scientist exploring Antarctica. What types of observations would you like to conduct and what type of data would you collect during your time with the penguins?